Lin Yutang, the noted writer-philosopher, almost sabotaged the Christmas tree business. He was giving a speech to 200 women on "Dress is Civilization," and he said, "Men should dress neatly, sensibly, and efficiently, but let us do away with this age-old Nordic fashion... the tie. Give us a few inches around our necks. You ladies can take off your jackets when it is too hot, and appear in your blouses. Why not men?"

Well, it was a blow for freedom... but if ties followed the Dodo bird into oblivion who would have to pen to the nerves of the ladies who count on ties to fill out half their Christmas shopping lists? Incidentally, Dr. Lin was wearing a tie.

"Because I was asked by Mrs. Lin to do so." As you were, gentlemen.

The price on a home in Philadelphia was advertised thus: "Single person, $23,000; Married, One Child, $25,000; House Full of Kids and Your Mother-in-Law, $21,000." In other words, the price is relative. Still, have some relatives and friends on your shopping list...

With no gifts chosen yet? You'll find friendly gift shopping service in our store... and many gift ideas, from the newest in Elizabeth Arden, Rubenstein, Yardley, Angelique, Revlon, Tussy Midnight, Coty, Evening In Paris, Tveed, and many other toiletries creations for women to men's cologne and shaving kits. Others attending were Mary Belle Schlechter, Ann Spann, Vicki Zanaway, Sue Van Landingham, Frances Layfield.

Research Is Essential

The genesis of all material progress is found in endless research and experiment. Articles running the gamut from machines to drugs may have their roots in discoveries that were made in past centuries and which had no practical value at the time. They may be the whole which is made up of parts contributed by scores or even hundreds of scientists, living in different eras and different lands.

The December issue of Fortune offers a graphic example of this. The newest addition to the arts and techniques of mass communication is television. The first experimental U. S. broadcasts were made only about a quarter-century ago and the first regular broadcasts didn't start until 1939. Progress in both broadcasting and receiving equipment has been astonishing. But, as Fortune points out, television never had an inventor. It was, instead, a development, and is the result of a century and a half of experimentation and research, "much of it conducted by inspired dreamers who had no way of knowing where their work was leading." Scientists from a long list of nations made essential contributions—the United States, Italy, France, England, Germany, Holland and Sweden.

It is obvious that, in these chaotic and swift moving times, any nation which fails to keep up with the march of research—both fundamental and applied—is inviting trouble. And, according to an article contributed to the Journal of Commerce by William C. Foster, president of the Manufacturing Chemists' Association, we are lagging behind in fundamental research "both in comparison with our needs and with advances in other countries, particularly Soviet Russia." He points out, incidentally, that it is difficult to narrowly define the term fundamental research, and for the purposes of his discussion he regards as any research which produces new fundamental knowledge. Also, he does not think that the scientist engaged in fundamental research should be regarded as superior to one engaged in application research—that is, research which has a definite objective, whether it be a new drug or a new bomb. Both types of research, he believes, are of equal importance.

Much fundamental research is done by industries. Yet there are obstacles here. As Mr. Foster says, "most fundamental research is highly speculative." A business concern naturally expects its research investment, like any other investment, to show a reasonable return in a reasonable length of time. The shorter-range objectives usually are given precedence. So, to quote him again, "Experience has shown that industrial laboratories are not the environment best suited to produce results in fundamental research."

As a consequence, a number of companies, both within and without the chemical industry (which budgets some $300,000,000 a year for research) are making substantial contributions to college, university and other laboratories and research centers. The only restriction is that the funds be used for fundamental research alone.

In Mr. Foster's view, the problem is here now, but the solution is a long way off. More support, both moral and financial, is needed, and American industry has the greatest reason to provide it. It is the problem of a problem which affects not only our prospects for future material advancement, but our security and survival as a free nation.

"Clear and Simple"

When questions affecting economics and the function of government become political controversies, they inevitably are surrounded with an atmosphere of emotional verbal argument. That has certainly happened in the case of the Administration's plan for having private enterprise build a $107,000,000 plant for supplying power needed by a huge Atomic Energy Commission installation in Arkansas.

The builders will do the job with private money, not tax money; they will take their chances on their estimates of cost being correct. And they will pay heavy taxes on any profits earned. The interests of the government and the AEC—which means the public interest—are fully protected in the contract. Yet this plan has been denounced as a "diversion of funds" and an effort to undermine TVA, by those who want TVA to supply the power on a tax-subsidized, tax-free basis, and extend socialization of electricity.

President Eisenhower's answer to that is irrefutable. He said, "It seems to me that there has been a very great deal of talk and argumentation of it, but I am not sure that it is as really clear and simple. No one in this administration has any doubt."

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Guess It's Called a Safety "Drive"

Whitley Fisher, from the State Motor Vehicle Department, dropped by to discuss some of our local traffic problems.

"Right Center" mentioned, "Whitley says, 'We've got a new sign that really does drive the traffic through town.'"

"The sign says, 'At 25 miles an hour, you can drive through Central Junction in 21 minutes.' It shows people drive down-time just take it easy to check on that 21 minutes. I guess, hasn't even been a dent in driver since that sign went up."

From where I sit, it wasn't really the sign said, but the way it was said. People are usually pretty understanding if they understand what you mean. It's the same with the sign. I don't know, perhaps your neighbor prefers a temperate glass of beer, and you would choose a cold one. What I'd like to see is for all of us to "slow down," talk it out, and be respectful of our neighbor's right.

intention of destroying or damaging TVA... But this is not the same thing as fastening on the federal government a continuing and never-ending responsibility which I frankly do not believe is logical or, in the long run, in the best interests of the country."

If unlimited socialism is right for the TVA area, it is right for all areas. Then we would wind up with a socialist federal power monopoly. The President doesn't want that. Neither does the majority of people.

25 Years Of Progress

How do meat prices of today compare with those of 25 years ago?

Almost anyone would answer that they're much higher now. That is true, if only dollars-and-cents figures are considered. But they are cheaper in terms of the amount of time the average industrial worker has to put in to earn the money to buy his meat.

To use two illustrations, in 1929 it took this worker 49 minutes to earn the price of a pound of round steak and 47 minutes in the case of a pound of ham. Now the figures are 30 minutes and 24 minutes respectively.

Many diverse factors have made that salutary development possible. One of them is the remarkably economical and efficient job done by the meat packers' concern that see to it that consumers in every far-flung reach of this vast country can obtain whatever cuts of meat they want when they want them. Impossible as it may seem, packers frequently sell dressed beef for less money than they paid for the animal on the hoof. They make up the difference, pay their overhead costs, and earn a small profit through the sale of non-edible by-products, such as hides that go into leather goods and glands that are the source of medicines.

Meat packing is a fine example of the kind of competitive enterprise that has built and continues to build our living standards.

Between now and 1975, if predictions made by the census figures are correct, there will be 200,000,000 mouths to feed in this country—some 44,000,000 more than at present. Yet the amount of land available for food production is expected to increase little, if at all. And it is probable that the number of people employed in agriculture will show no marked change. How, then, can agriculture produce the food? Does this mean that our living standards have to be for a decline, so far as food and fiber are concerned?

As Dean of Agriculture Harry J. Reed of Purdue University, has made clear, the history of agriculture has been one of greater production with less labor. A century ago it took five man-hours to produce a bushel of corn—now it can be done with about 10 minutes work. Even since 1940, farm output per man-hour of labor has increased by 45 percent—nearly half.

The main reason for such revolutionary progress is found in mechanized farm equipment. According to Dr. Reed, there are 4,400,000 tractors and 840,000 combines on American farms, along with more than 2,500,000 trucks and some 4,500,000 automobiles. There are all kinds of other machines and attachments—sprayers, dryers, milkers, and so on. And, as the years pass, more and more machines and better machines become available, due to the initiative of the highly competitive farm equipment industry. These machines in the hands of efficient farmers, coupled with help from people in education, science and industry, will meet the call for continued progress on the land.

Grass Roots Opinion

MOUNT OLIVE, N. C. TRIBUNE: "I will give you all the land you can walk around by sunset for this nugget of gold," said the landholder to the returned prospector. He put his hat down on the ground. "You must be at this hat before the sun sets over the hill." The prospector began to run, trying to get as much land as possible. He went too far. He exhausted himself. With all his strength he drove himself to get back before the sunset. He did, just as the sun went behind the hill. But he fell dead upon the hat. Life is not all getting. Greed makes us its slave—kills us at the end. "He that is greedy of gain troubleth his own house." (Proverbs 15:27.)

BEACH HAVEN, N. J. TIMES: "Last year Postmaster General Summerfield set down the regulations for the regulation on third-class mail so that unaddressed, non-subscription, 100 percent advertising circulars can be delivered to everyone served by carriers or post office boxes at third-class rates. He said it would save money for clerks would not have to sort this mail by name and address, but it has actually resulted in a huge increase of volume in a money-losing branch of the postal service."

BAY SHORE, N. Y. SUFFOLK-EVERY-WEEK: "People always grouse about paying taxes. They seldom exert pressure to make their taxes felt. Certainly, they do little to lay their case before the elected officials who are in charge of the purse-strings. They become the victims of their own apathy."

Game Commission To Meet Dec. 20

TALLAHASSEE — The next regular meeting of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, will be held on Monday, December 20, 1954, according to Director E. B. "Shorty" Jones. This meeting was originally planned for December 13, but was postponed one week so that interested delegations might have more time to make their necessary preparations.

The meeting will convene at 10:00 a. m. in the Tallahassee office of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. Sportsmen interested in the welfare of Florida's wildlife and fish resources are urged by Jones to attend these meetings and to take a continuous active part in the propagation, restoration, and conservation program set for by the Commission.

Now Advertising helps you

Less Than in 1921

IN THESE days when every kind of record is being broken, it is astounding to find that the ratio of advertising to national income is lower than in 1921. Which gives the lie to those who say that advertising is running wild and something ought to be done about it.

"You are reading a few words that while advertising has grown, it has not grown with the growth of the things which it is national income and public interest and service. The science of the advertising dollar."

In 1928, to start with, America's total advertising bill was $3 billion. Right now it is about $7 billion. That's quite an increase, all right. But in 1928, the national income was $70 billion against $280 billion in 1954.

Let's put that in terms of ratio. There are 3.3 times as many dollars in the national income as there were in 1928, but the national income has gone up 4.3 times. So the ratio of advertising is actually just about half what it was then. This means one thing of course:

That stimulates you, that statement, doesn't it? Look. The cost of what you buy is at least two times what it was before World War II. But wages, what you earn, are three times as much. What do you think has kept prices from doubling? Advertising, of course.

By HERB MOSHER
Dove shooting season opened at noon, Saturday, December 11th, for what really is the high point of the 1954-55 hunting season. All hunters can participate in this state-wide dove shoot. No dogs are necessary, as (in quail hunting) and undoubtedly a huge army will take to the fields.

Biologists claim hunters annually bag only 4 (four) percent of the dove crop, so "bird lovers" need not worry too much.

The daily consumption of shotgun shells, per hunter, is figured, roughly, at three boxes (75 shells), with the bag of birds per man ranging from "not so much as a feather" to maybe one or two doves. Yes, for all this ammunition! A very few marksmen do better, but doves are notoriously hard to hit.

Dealers who have shotgun shells on their shelves figure they'll be "cleaned out" long before the 20-day dove season ends. For sure there'll be a lot of noise, with some few doves actually killed, plus some fun provided no hunters get shot themselves. So now to lay in several cases of shells, 12s and 16s, for the coming event.

Every time I see a Cadillac or other "big" car attempting to negotiate streets, roads, highways, parking spaces... any place I go, I am reminded of very large, fat man trying to wear his little boy's britches. A small or medium-sized European-type automobile can do better than these huge automobiles, so that is why I've finally bought a little Nash (manufactured in England) in the hope of solving some traffic problems.

ways, roads, streets... were tailored for horses and bugles (some of them are still out paths for all practical purposes) and the move seems to be a good one. The little devil (Nash) goes for a 1954 model, in a dime, runs beautifully like the proverbial sewing machine.

funds which are available are appropriated only for the communities and not for individuals. Mr. Keenel also said that he was working on plans to secure a mobile hospital unit for the state at large — the only problem at the moment being the matter of a staff to man it.

Fontaine LeMaitre, president of the Children's Home Society of Florida, turned to Henry Van Dyke in presenting his Christmas appeal this year. In a letter urging those who are able to act as a stand-in for Santa and help provide a happy Christmas for all the little girls and boys now in the care of the Society, he passes on Van Dyke's famous recipe for a "Happy Christmas. Here it is:

"If you can forget what you have done for others, and remember what others have done for you; if you do not think about what the world owes you, but what you owe the world; if you can put your rights in the background, your duty in the foreground; if your fellowmen are real to you and you try to look behind their faces into their hearts, hungering for you if you are willing to stoop down and consider the need of little children, and to remember the weakness and loneliness of people growing old; if you can make a grave of your selfish thoughts and a garden of your kindly feelings, then you begin to appreciate and enjoy Christmas."

As we busy ourselves with plans for our own Christmas, it is easy to forget the urgent need of the least fortunate. It is not that I intend to be thoughtless or selfish. Our minds are so occupied with our own plans for family and friends that there is no room for thoughts of outsiders.

Let's see. Have we taken care of everybody? The children, yes! we can check them off. The closet is filled with mysterious packages. Dad, Mother, Uncle Bill, Cousin Mary? The neighbors, and on through the list? No, we don't seem to have forgotten anyone or missed anybody. Now we can turn to arranging for the tree and the Christmas party and dinner. The tree can go over in the corner and we'll have to get some more decorations this year. We will trim it after the youngsters go to bed and won't their little eyes pop out on Christmas morning. Goodness, there are so many packages it is going to be hard to get them all under the tree.

Mustn't forget some big logs for the fireplace. And the kids can hang up their stockings, and leave letter and some of their little eyes pop out on Christmas morning. A lot of folks are sure to drop in. We better have plenty and a big bowl of assorted nuts, and another of fruit would go well on the sideboard. There's some mince pie to hang in the hall and plenty of candles. It just wouldn't be Christmas without candles. Then, of course, we want a cherry-croissant in the window and on the door.

Now for dinner we'll have turkey and cranberry sauce. Dad likes chestnut dressing so we'll have that and whipped potatoes, green peas and some of those big olives and stuffed celery. Grandma is going to make one of her famous fruit cakes and we'll have mince pie and after dinner mints.

Yes, Christmas is a lot of work and a lot of fun, but let's get back to Henry Van Dyke's recipe. Haven't we been thinking a little too much about ourselves? Wouldn't our Christmas job be tremendously expanded if we stopped to remember that the world is full of folks less fortunate than ourselves? Children in orphanages who need a home. Old folks, alone in the world, who would welcome even a word of love and affection.

By sharing our abundance and blessings with them we can make this the best Christmas ever. Set another place at your table for some lonely soul, make room around your tree for some unfortunate child and God will know that you have indeed looked the real spirit of Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Nuss of Riverview called on Mrs. S. L. Eckman one day last week. The two men were boyhood friends in Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Boatwright visited his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Denver Hobbs in Kendall Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moulton of Donaldsonville, Ga., visited her daughter, non-in-law and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Davis and family last week.

Pvt. Raymond Martin, based at Fort Bliss, Texas is expected home on a 13 day furlough this Wednesday morning as he was attempting to thumb a ride to Miami, where one of the boys stated he had a brother.

The two youths were lodged in the city jail for investigation in connection with the attempted theft of N. Ray Whitlock's Ford Station Wagon about 10 o'clock Tuesday night.

Mr. Whitlock stated that he had stepped out of Ray's Smoke House on his return the waitress kidded him about trying to start his car and failing.

Not having been near the car in the interim, he investigated and found it had been moved from the parking lot to Mitchell's Store, half a block down hill. Realizing that someone had attempted to start the vehicle, officers were summoned and a search made for the party or parties involved.

No trace was found during the night but City Patrolman Lester Rhudy, on the lookout the next morning, took the two strange youths into custody. Upon investigation they admitted that they had come from home and also that they had tried to start the station wagon. It developed that they had spent the night in the vacant Walker's Hotel building.

They were transferred Wednesday night to West Palm Beach and turned over to Sheriff John Kirk.

Baptist Officials Agree To Sell Old Property On SR 80

The Baptist Church officials held a meeting last week and voted to sell their church property on SR No. 80 to C. D. Grant for $5500 cash, the cash to be used immediately to purchase windows and other material to put the new church into condition for occupancy.

They estimated the cost of doors and windows to be $200.00. The side walls of the church are up and the roof on the above sum will not by any means complete finishing the interior and exterior but it will rough it in, Rev. John Cooper stated, to the point where they can move the church furniture from the present building to the new edifice and give possession of the present building to the purchaser.

A company doesn't just happen to live for 75 years. Usually some one factor, more than others, makes it possible. In the case of Southern Bell, the magic ingredient has been the public's acceptance of good and growing telephone service furnished at the lowest possible cost.

Chartered on December 20, 1879, with 1,246 telephones, Southern Bell was formed by men of foresight, with faith in the South's future. Their faith was borne out, and the Company grew to 26,396 telephones by 1900.

Since World War II, telephone progress in the South has broken all records: From 1,863,000 telephones at the end of 1945 to over 4,500,000 today, while Long Distance circuits have more than doubled. Such remarkable scientific developments as the transistor, microwave radio-relay and direct operator dialing of Long Distance calls have opened exciting new vistas of service.

In the years ahead, life men and women of Southern Bell pledge to keep on furnishing the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost. On this, our 75th Anniversary, we express our appreciation for the opportunity of serving you.

Indian Pow-Wow At Orlando Ends In Peace-Pipe Puffing

A meeting of the Seminole Indian Association in Orlando on November 24 concluded with figurative peace-pipe puffing as to the alignment of levee 23 of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control Project.

The conference was apparently called to protest a levee alignment, selected by the Corps of Engineers, which would divide the State Seminole Reservation into two pieces from north to south. It ended on a note of acceptance and agreement by all present except six Indians representing their tribal Council.

Officials representing the interests of the Seminoles expressed confidence that tribal acceptance would be forthcoming following detailed explanation of the greater benefits which would result from that alignment over all others, including a shift eastward to coincide with

They Need Your CARE Help

This mother and child in Southern Vietnam, refugees from the communist north, are typical of the hungry families you can feed this Christmas by contributing $1 to CARE.

Each dollar you give covers overseas distribution costs on two CARE food packages containing a total of 24 lbs. of U.S. farm surplus which have been waiting in storage. Two families who need that food badly will thus each receive a 14-lb. CARE food package, bearing your own name and address.

There are 1,257,200 of these CARE holiday packages for that many families in 31 European, Latin American and Asian countries, including Vietnam. The U. S. Government released the food from stocks not needed for U. S. welfare programs.

All donations sent to "CARE Food Campaign, 660 First Ave., New York 16, N.Y., or any local CARE office, will be acknowledged. Donors of $5 or more will also receive receipts signed by the recipients of each package they subscribe.

the eastern reservation boundary as advocated by the Indians. All reservation lands east of the alignment would be in the water conservation area of the project, a more frequent flooding than present but would still be as useful for hunting and conservation practices.

R. D. Mitchell, President of the Seminole Indian Association conducting the meeting, called on Oscar Rawls, of the Corps of Engineers, to explain the alignment chosen. Rawls emphasized that the levee was planned to flat, shallow peat lands of the follow the natural line between Everglades on the east and the sloping lands which support excellent natural forage for cattle on the west. Soil classification experts had seen this same line as the boundary between good soils susceptible to high development on the west from the almost worthless, shallow sawgrass lands to the east. Rawls also pointed out that shifting the alignment eastward would place the good lands farther away from the water control canal which would parallel the levee and thereby increase the costs and effectiveness of local improvements. The Seminoles are said to be developing a promising beef cattle industry on reservation lands.

The greater costs of levee construction which eastward relocation would require with no compensating increase in benefits to anyone was cited. The Indians would actually receive less water control if the levee should be moved eastward, Rawls stated.

Evan Flory, Soil Conservationist for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Washington, gave endorsement to the Corps of Engineers' alignment, as did other Soil Conservation Service and Indian Bureau officials present. W. Turner Wallis of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, the State agency charged with procurement of lands and right-of-way for construction of the flood control project, took an active part in the meeting. That agency is also the official representative of local interests in all relations with the Corps of Engineers in planning and construction of the project.

Jimmy Osceola acted as principal spokesman for the Indian delegation, which made an im- in bright red jackets of authentic Seminole design.

Planning on stuffing that Christmas turkey with oyster dressing? If you do, be sure the oysters are certified, says the Florida State Board of Health, Bureau of Sanitary Engineering.

Establishments handling shellfish in Florida and other states undergo periodic inspection from state and federal agencies to be sure that the shellfish comes from clean water and are properly handled in seafood houses, the bureau explains.

Each house passing inspection is issued a "certification number" which the establishment is required to place on each can, carton or other container of shellfish.

This certification number is the customer's assurance that the contents have been taken
